

King of Rome - Paragraph

Pick one of the illustrations and write a paragraph to tell that part of the story. Include direct speech in your paragraph.

Charlie Hudson went to the pub for a drink of fizzy beer when suddenly he saw a flash of feathers. His friends gushed excitedly, "Come outside quickly, your pigeon has returned! He's perched up on your roof!"

Charlie leapt out of his seat and knocked his drink on the floor. Quickly, he ran to his house. When he saw his pigeon he laughed joyously and cried, "Come on down, your majesty I knew you'd make it home!" The pigeon started to hopped lightly towards Charlie. Charlie reassured his pigeon, "Come on down, you lovely one. You made my dream come true."

The King of Rome flew to Charlie and he gently held and stroked him, while his friends looked on happily.
